

Safety sign audits

New from ASG Services is a 'Safety Sign Audit' service, designed to provide customers with a professional survey and consultation of their safety sign requirements.

The audit will be carried out by NEBOSH qualified personnel and includes a survey of the existing site internally and externally. It also includes a full report with clear visual detail using photographs, and a recommendation of what the site requires to be compliant with current Health and Safety (Safety Signs and Signals) Regulations 1996, Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 and BS5499 Part 4 and 5, 2000.

The audit not only covers the requirements for safety signs but also where pedestrian segregation, such as painted walkways and barriers, would be appropriate. A full cost analysis is also provided to ensure the warehouse is compliant.

New washroom website

Now live and running, the new Leonardo website is designed to give even more useful information and guidance on washroom dispensing systems as part of Connect Hygiene Products' long term customer support strategy.

A key feature is the product selector, allowing customers to identify and evaluate the most effective cost in use systems for all or part of their washroom requirement. Together with a continuously updating news feed, this user friendly site still carries the downloads, brochures and case studies that Connect Hygiene Products says help to make it one of the industry's 'must visit' sites.

Durable coating

Watco Epoxy Gloss Coat industrial floor coating is said to be extremely tough and hardwearing as well as decorative. Available in a range of colours, it is already being used in workplaces from factories and workshops to warehouses and showrooms.

A durable coating with high chemical resistance, Watco Epoxy Gloss Coat protects and brightens concrete. Virtually odour free, it is suitable for use in confined areas and with low VOC (volatile organic compounds), it is said to be environmentally friendly too.

The floor coating is also available in a 'Rapid Cure' version, reducing factory downtime, and an antibacterial version containing technology proven to kill 99.9% of bacteria (including MRSA and E.Coli). This makes it suitable for food storage and preparation areas, canteens and medical rooms.

Snow clearance

During winter contractors are often tasked with clearing snow from all external areas and walkways. Of vital importance is the ability for the machine to fit between pedestrian bollards and quickly multi-task between sweeping, snow plough and grit spreading. Currently available at a special package price, the Nilfisk Park Ranger 2150 can perform a variety of tasks including snow clearing and salt spreading simultaneously.

A single lock and release lever separates the attachments with no tools required, and attachments can be changed in less than four minutes. Hydraulics, water, power and vacuum hoses connect automatically, with all hoses and couplings hidden and well protected. The articulated unit is just one metre wide, is said to have excellent weight distribution, and is sold with a new 28 HP Perkins Engine.

Spill absorbent

Spill absorbent granules that work by absorption into the structure of the granule (rather than adsorbing onto the surface of the spill) are coming to the fore in the fields of chemical and paint absorption.

Products such as InstaZorb, which is imported into the UK by Process Measurement and Analysis (PMA), are based on thermally expanded volcanic minerals with proprietary surfactant treatments.

These are said to have a greater surface area and to be more flexible in application, being able to absorb any liquid or semi liquid – from bodily fluids to paint. One product can service a variety of spill incidents and reduce cleaning chemical and water usage in the process.
